The Mask
Our revels now are ended. These our actors, as I foretold you, were all spirits ... we are such stuff as dreams are made on ....

- William Shakespeare

Free spirits, huh? A college student's favorite attitude. Well, yes, spirit is a big part of the college experience. We the students are the ultimate "free spirits." No rules, no parents, no restrictions. We are our own responsibilities and we can do it all. Here at Oxford the students make the campus. This explains the vast change in attitudes, activities, and actions throughout the years. As students change, Oxford changes too. The spirit changes each year with a new group of students. With the influx of changing students, the only constant sense of established spirit is Dooley! His masked face and image houses this spirit. Year after year, the students find new ways to unleash that spirit. We are the ones who can make or break this campus. We, along with our peers, professors, and staff of Oxford, create the spirit that we need. Although hidden behind his mask, Dooley keeps the spirit alive. Dooley would be nothing without the support of the campus, and in that sense, the students and faculty keep his spirit alive. Although we are masked in the shadow of a skeleton, we find ways to let ourselves shine through. We are also masked by the shadow of the larger...
The legend of Dooley all began in 1899 when a writer decided to vent his frustrations over the faculty and student body through the student publication, The Phoenix. The article did not mention the name of Dooley, but spoke of a skeleton purchased in 1850 and was signed "C.A.W." This probably stood for Charles Anderson Weaver, a senior of that year. The formal introduction happened some ten years later, when Dooley wrote an article conveniently called, "By Way of Introduction." He explained his existence from the second floor of Pierce Science Hall as "a fleshless, bloodless, nerveless, brainless skeleton." Thus the Spirit of Oxford was born.

Dooley continued to thrive on campus for a few years, until the college decided to move its campus into Atlanta. Apparently upset that he wasn't informed of the switch, Dooley did not re-surface for sometime before WWII. When he did make his appearance again, it was pro-student body and anti-faculty. Since then, Dooley spontaneously makes appearances, bearing letters of praise and admonishments which always seem to cause excitement among his followers.

For over a hundred and fifty years, Dooley has existed as the ghost that roams the college quad and dorms. He has become a permanent fixture of Oxford, especially during times when traditions seem to fail. Dooley is the true spirit of Oxford, and we, the students and faculty on campus, help to keep that spirit alive. In the words of Dooley: "Presidents may come, and presidents may go; professors may come and professors may go; students may come and students may go; but Dooley goes on forever."

Sports

The Mask
The rugby team is a first year team for Oxford. This group of guys came together and accomplished something they didn't think was possible. These men bonded on and off the field, with hard work and dedication. They were very successful in inter-collegiate competition. Two outstanding players on the team, Trent Spake and Joel McGlamry, received bids and are potential all-stars.

Oxford College had an exciting basketball season this year. There were 3-on-3 tournaments, and 5-on-5. There was a women's league in the 5-on-5 division. At the end of February, Oxford held an extramural tournament with teams from different colleges. Many of the intramural teams on campus are made up of friends, club members, and people from the same dorms. Along with Seth Bussey, Intramural Director, the students at Oxford helped to make the basketball season successful.

On a warm Saturday afternoon in October, Oxford students decided to take full advantage of the weather by participating in Fall Fest. It was a day simply for relaxation and fun. Some students either chose to watch the Oxford Rugby team play a match against Berry College or some tested the various booths set up by the campus clubs. COE had a table for tye-dying t-shirts. Dooley's Dolls and COE also allowed students to personalize their own drinking cups. Other fun activities included apple-bobbing, and making your own cotton candy. Perhaps the biggest and most popular booth was the star walk—big inflated trampoline where students could do back flips or simply jump high enough to reach the stars.

Ron Bruno displays his fine talent in tye-dying. So where's the t-shirt now?

Students were able to donate a pint of their blood in exchange for cookies, crackers, and drinks offered by Circle K. Held in the Student Center Rathskeller and in the t.v. room, it was easier for students to donate and to earn an Oxford Studies point at the same time. The blood drive was also open to local residents.

Spreading the Spirit

Off-campus trips were a great opportunity this year for Oxford students and staff to escape from the dreary, typical weekends on campus. This year students volunteered for the AIDS Walk in the fall, by either working in the concession stands or walking to collect money for AIDS victims. Also in the fall, Oxford hosted its annual Fall Retreat to Athens. Students spent the weekend participating in a variety of activities. Anything from rock-sliding to hiking to horseback riding or simply canoeing in the lake. Another trip in January was a visit to Zoo Atlanta, hosted by S.I.R.E. Oxford Fellowship also took a rafting trip and a ski trip in the winter. Several students also went to various political rallies throughout the year.

Stephanie West, Elizabeth Otwell, Jennifer Hogan, and Rhonda Stephens, stay dry by being spectators.

Jon Horn and David Fenner add some of their own beauty to the scenery around them.

The First and Last Snow

On a cold Februaury 13, 1995 night, Oxford College students witnessed their first "real" snow of the year. Unfortunately it was also their last. Around midnight, students started a large snowball fight that extended from the Branham parking lot to the Dowman lot. Of course, the snow was very light and only 1/8 of an inch actually stuck to the ground. Students compromised, however, by scraping the snow off the cars and trying not to set off any alarms in the process. It proved to be a great success as you can tell from the pictures.

Floridians, Kim Kaufman and Kat Milcowitz huddle together to stay warm, during Oxford's only snow of the season.

Anna Curtis struggles to get up after the girls from Third Branham pushed her into the fallen snow.

Steve Wilbert vents his frustrations by packing a snowball hard enough to make anyone run.

Need we say more...?
Volunteer Oxford is a division of Campus Life which coordinates students outreach programs. For many years, Oxford students have been involved in serving the local community, largely through the sponsorship of clubs. Volunteer Oxford offers students a centralized office to access service projects on an into volunteer programs from Covington to Atlanta.

Although Volunteer Oxford is administratively supported, it is primarily a student run program. The Volunteer Coordinator is a sophomore student who oversees the many projects, programs, and outreach efforts of Volunteer Oxford and receives a stipend for compensation. The remainder of the staff is also a staff advisor.

Volunteer Oxford exists to aid individual students and campus organizations to find rewarding service projects in the area. Volunteer Oxford aims to provide students with a variety of service opportunities that yield invaluable experience of life.

Cuban Refugees
Earthquake in Japan

More than 5,000 people died in a violent earthquake that rumbled through Kobe, Japan on January 17, 1995. Estimates of the damage ranged from $100 billion to $130 billion, and some 270,000 people were forced to live in refugee shelters because their homes collapsed or were unsafe.

President Bill Clinton ended 28 years of favored treatment for Cuban refugees. He ordered U.S. ships to intercept those fleeing Cuba by boat to detain them at the U.S. Navy base in Guantanamo.

Jostens Publishing representative, Dale Bennett was always on hand to lend his spirited expertise.
As the spirit of the year passes us by, we can look back on 1994-1995 and laugh, smile, and cry. The Oxford experience has truly been a unique one and for the sophomores it is now time to leave it behind us. The few things we will take with us though, are the memories. Along with these memories comes the undeniable spirit, the spirit of Oxford. Dooley is one of the most unique parts of the Oxford campus. The spirit he evokes, whether positive or negative, gets all the students involved. As all of us, freshmen, sophomores, and faculty alike, move on to bigger and better things, the spirit will continue to live inside of us. This spirit will follow us through life and remind us of the memories. We all embody the spirit, the Spirit Behind the Mask.

Some special thank you:
To Advisor, Terry Elarri, for allowing us to take over her office whenever we needed it; especially during deadlines. Also for all those petty cash forms that I seemed to need daily. And of course, for being a supportive advisor with so many inspirational quotes, “brain fart, underwear in a knot.”
To Jostens Representative, Dale Bennett, for his infinite yearbook wisdom. Thanks for the strong foundation.
To photographer, Barry Stowe, for ALL of his pictures. People make mistakes, but in the end you came through. We still love you.
To Shawna Hoover for all of her extra work. I know I never could have done it without you. Our all-nighter was loads o’ fun….”My dog is better than your dog. What’s that noise? I’ve got to pee!”
To Chase Poindexter and Camilla Thurmond, for putting up with me; even on my worst days. You guys are the greatest.
To honorary staff member, Jamie Golden for all of her unnecessary hard work. We really appreciate your help.
To Pat Brookshire, Josten’s computer Goddess, for everything. Without you, this book would not have been possible. The magnitude of our thanks can not be put into words. We love you.
To all faculty and staff who donated pictures and information. We really appreciate it.
To the Campus life/Res life offices, for allowing us to run back and forth through your office so many times, after using your printer.
To the Memory staff. Without you guys and all of your hard work, this book would not be here today. I appreciate the dedication.
To Dooley, the original spirit of Oxford. Need I say more?
And last but not least, to the faculty, staff, and student body of Ox-
